

Other

Death Photography - Car Accident

WARNING - THIS IS EXTREMELY GRAPHIC CONTENT! YOU MUST BE OVER 18 TO CONTINUE. THESE ARE DISTURBING, GRAPHIC PHOTOGRAPHS, PLEASE DO NOT CONTINUE IF YOU HAVE A WEAK STOMACH! PLEASE DO NOT GET ANGRY IF THESE PHOTOS DISTURB YOU BECAUSE WE'RE GIVING YOU A GIANT WARNING AT THE TOP OF THE THREAD WARNING YOU THE CONTENT IS DISTURBING.

This is a memorial of those who have met ends naturally or unnaturally. Please be respectful in your comments. Human history is a bloody history, and no amount of ignoring it because its uncomfortable or disturbing will help those who gave and sacrificed their lives of their own will, or by the will of others.

Death photograph is a means by which you can channel a time period, a family, or an individual. It is not necessary to have a picture of someone in death to converse with them, but when you're talking about those who died in the war, the holocaust, by accident, or illness, it helps to immediately connect with them on the level that you desire to honor their memory and finally, for someone, to hear their story.

So often people are forgotten or overlooked because those living don't want to be disgusted, or bothered, by reminding themselves of the horror... which is a true shame. Not us, we hear what they have to share, and we look, boldly, into the bloody history of human kind, and give a voice to those who've lost theirs. It's something that means a great deal to us, and honoring those whose lives were ripped away, is the way to keep their memory & their spirit alive.

This is a small sampling of our death photography. Again, this is graphic content.

Motorists passing this field somewhere in Upstate New York witnessed a scene gruesome beyond imagination. I'm told there were two people in the mangled pile of automobile and both were decapitated. Strangely, one man in the top photo appears blurry and ghostly while the rest of the photo remains in focus. (Ash's write-up)

Other

Unique solution ID: #2313
Author: Magnolia West
Last update: 2014-02-20 19:36